

DIAZ WIRES TAFT SUBTLE DEMAND FOR REPARATION

Says Relations Are Solid,
But Indicates Lynching
Should Be Avenged.

MESSAGE HELD BY DE LA BARRA

Mexican Ambassador Will Submit
It to President on His Return
From Panama.

Developments in the Mexican Situation.

Mexican kills police chief at Anadarko, Okla. Calls victim to door and shoots him.

President Diaz, of Mexico, in message to President Taft, says recent disturbances prove how solid relations are between two countries.

Mexico, however, looks for reparation for murder of Antonio Rodriguez, at the same time promising protection to Americans.

State Department is without advice from Mexico where anti-American revolt is becoming complicated.

Arrest of Carlos B. Carothers, an American, in Guadalajara, Mexico, has not been reported to State Department.

Declaring that the recent disturbances only prove how solid are the relations between the two countries, but, at the same time, indicating Mexico looks to the United States for full reparation over the lynching in Texas of Antonio Rodriguez, President Diaz today sent a long message to President Taft bearing on the situation.

The message was received by Senor de la Barra, the Mexican ambassador, and immediately sent to the State Department, where it will probably be held until the return of the President from Panama.

The Statement.

It is as follows:

"President Diaz expresses the satisfaction he feels upon knowing the promise made by President Taft in his telegram transmitted to him through the Mexican ambassador to punish those guilty of the murder of the Mexican, Antonio Rodriguez, for that proves how solid, in fact, are the relations between the two countries.

"The Mexican government on its part has instituted proceedings for the punishment of those responsible for misdeeds committed in Mexico, and offers to repress with all the vigor of law any attempts whatever against American citizens residing there, which are not to be expected considering the culture of the people."

Statement Significant.

While President Diaz's message refers to the friendship existing between the two countries, the fact that he speaks of the recent anti-American demonstrations as misdeeds is regarded as significant.

Ambassador de la Barra, after transmitting the message today, said he had had no advice from Mexico, and if, such was the case, he is certain President Diaz would have been informed of it by this time.

No Word of Arrest.

The ambassador declared that he had heard nothing from his government concerning the reported arrest in Guadalajara, Mexico, of Carlos B. Carothers, an American.

COUNT LEO TOLSTOY,

PLOT TO DYNAMITE PLANT IS FOILED

Molders' Strike At Richmond, Ind., Machine Works Reaches Critical Stage.

RICHMOND, Ind., Nov. 13.—The molders' strike at the Robinson Machine Works took on a serious aspect today when the management discovered a plot to dynamite the plant.

An appeal was made to the police department for more protection and an extra detail of officers was placed on duty at the plant in addition to the company's special guards.

For several days strangers in the city have been applying at the company's offices for work in place of the strikers, but none has been employed except where good references have been given. Early this morning three men were discovered trying to effect an entrance through a high fence in the rear. They fled and tools they left behind indicated that they had planned violence. Detectives are looking for the men.

A crisis is nearing in the strike situation, it is stated, by both union and non-union laborers. Both sides are making charges.

Violence was again resorted to when Charles Border, non-union employee, was waylaid and stoned. He escaped with slight injuries and fired two times at his assailants.

The strikers say they will keep up their tactics for a year and the company is determined to run an open shop at whatever cost.

BURNED TO DEATH; ASLEEP IN BARN

Two Young Men Victims of Fire In Hayloft.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 13.—Charles Kruger and Thomas Henneberry were burned to death when fire destroyed the barn at 859 West Forty-second street early today.

The two young men, who were thirty-two years and twenty-one years, respectively, had made their sleeping quarters in the hayloft in the barn for some time. It is supposed that the lantern which they used to light the loft became overturned and set the hay afire. The bodies were burned beyond recognition.

TWO MEN MISSING IN OKLAHOMA FIRE

Cotton Mills Destroyed With Loss Estimated At $100,000.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 13.—Fire of an incendiary origin destroyed the Oklahoma Cotton Mills this morning.

John Fox, engineer of the plant, and a night watchman were in the building at the time the fire started, but neither could be found.

The loss is estimated at $100,000.

CHILD'S BURNS FATAL

Margaret Mackall, a five-year-old negro child, died this morning in the Children's Hospital, from burns received by falling against a stove at her home, 1116 Conger street northeast, last Friday.

REFORMER TRACED TO A MONASTERY

Wife, Deserted By Famous Writer, Relieved of Great Anxiety.

MOSCOW, Nov. 13.—Count Tolstoy was discovered today in the monastery of Koselsky, in the province of Kalouga, 350 kilometers southwest of this city.

The finding of the famous author and Socialist sets at rest the rumors that he had been imprisoned by the Russian government.

His wife, who tried twice yesterday to end her life after receiving the pathetic farewell addressed to her by her departing husband, will probably go to him again, it is expected.

It was the count's desire to escape from what he believed to be a life of luxury that evidently led him to desert his family in his old age.

A private telegram from Tula, European Russia, says the count left his home on October 10 to spend the rest of his days in solitude and seclusion.

The letter which he left for his wife, Yashaya Poliana, he was accompanied by Dr. Makovsky, his physician.

He was traced to Stechikino, a few miles from his home. He took a train for the South, and no further trace was found of him until today, although his family have been scouring the country in all directions.

Tolstoy, in the letter which he left, said he wished to live in peace as a true Christian, and would not return under any circumstances.

WILL WORK MINES OF CZAR IN SIBERIA

John Hays Hammond Says He Goes to Find Opportunity for Americans.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Nov. 3.—John Hays Hammond, friend of President Taft and millionaire mining engineer, is going to Siberia to develop the mines of the czar.

"I shall go to Siberia," said Mr. Hammond, "solely in the interest of American capital. I may go at the end of the month, but I hope not to have to go before next spring. I am going to give American people an opportunity of investing their money in Siberian mining enterprises. I shall be on the outlook for gold and copper. I hope to develop these to a large extent. This will mean the development of manufacturing, for where there are mines there must be mining machinery."

CHARGES OF OFFICIAL.

"The injury to Munk was the result of a plainly deliberate act. I cannot state positively now the name of the Bethany player who inflicted it, but I saw the incident clearly. A few minutes before Munk was knocked down I had penalized the Bethany team fifteen yards because the same Bethany player had run into Munk intentionally. I was watching for more of the same sort of work."

In the next rush there was no untoward occurrence, but in the next to follow I saw the Bethany player, whose name I did not obtain at that time, run deliberately into Munk and knock him over backwards.

"Munk fell heavily on the back of his head, and did not rise. A few minutes, as has been said, I did not see him again."

FREEDOM AT HAND ASSERTS REDMOND; ROUNDELY CHEERED

Trip to America for Material Aid Fulfills Prophecy, He Says.

APPLAUSE LASTS TEN MINUTES

Question of How Much Self-Government Is Problem Now, Leader Declares.

Words That Make Irish Cheer Redmond.

I have been taunted by the English for going to America for aid; Ireland has this right when America went to France in her fight for freedom.

My prophecy has come true that events are shaping themselves for the triumph of home rule.

The one thing occupying all minds today is not so much self-government, as how much self-government.

CORK, Nov. 13.—Amid scenes of remarkable enthusiasm, John Redmond this afternoon delivered his first address here since his return from the States.

In the course of his speech to an audience of many thousands, the Irish leader said:

"My prophecy, made when I was here last, that events were shaping themselves for the triumph of home rule has come true. The one thing occupying all minds today is not so much self-government, but how much self-government and by what methods self-government can be granted to Ireland. This political situation has arisen in a more acute form than ever. The English democracy is making a striking defense for its rights and liberties, and the Irish democracy is able to aid them, but they are not hypocrites enough to realize that their chief concern in the fight for Ireland is her liberty and her rights."

"I have been taunted by the English for going to America for material support. One of the greatest American statesmen declared to me that Ireland had the same right to go to America for support as America had to go to France when seeking her own independence."

Mr. Redmond closed his speech with an eloquent appeal for a united nationalist party, which he said was necessary in order to realize the triumph they dreamed of.

The great crowds cheered for ten minutes at the close of his address.

FOUL PLAY ALLEGED IN GRIDIRON DEATH

Arrest of Football Player on Assault Charge Expected In Wheeling.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 13.—An arrest, based upon a charge of foul play, probably will be made tonight or tomorrow, following the death of Rudolph Munk, captain and left halfback of the West Virginia University team, who was killed in a football game here yesterday afternoon when that team met Bethany University eleven.

Sensational charges were made before Coroner Rodgers today, by Homer N. Young, former Michigan football player, who officiated as referee at the game, and told the coroner that in his belief Munk was deliberately struck upon the head by the Bethany player.

Coroner Rodgers has ordered an autopsy over Munk's body, and today declined to allow the body to be removed to Connelville, Pa., where Munk's parents live. A number of the Bethany players, including the man alleged to be responsible for Munk's death, and other eyewitnesses of the accident or the assault will be summoned before a coroner's jury tomorrow.

Georgia Senator May Not Be Able to Attend Congress Until Late In Session.

No immediate crisis is anticipated, but it is doubtful if he can return to Washington until late in the session.

SEINE STILL RISING, PARIS IS FLOODED

Water Fills Cellars of Police Station—Another Disaster Threatened.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Although the weather was fair today the Seine continued to rise rapidly.

If the next few days bring no rain the city may escape a repetition of last winter's disaster.

The river is now rising at the rate of sixty centimeters a day. Early today the water had reached the station in the Rue des Invalides and flooded the cellars of the central police building.

BALTIMORE GIRL'S GYPSY LIFE ENDS

MRS. GEORGE MITCHELLE,
"Queen of the Gypsies," Who Was Formerly Miss Jessie Habersham, of Baltimore.

Death Comes to Former Jessie Habersham In Hospital At Cincinnati—Baby Girl Left Motherless—Queen of Gypsies Was Her Title.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—Jessie Habersham, daughter of A. W. Habersham, of Baltimore, and a member of one of the oldest and most respected Maryland families, is dead in the Seton Hospital, where she was taken by her gypsy husband and his clan with whom she ran away from home five years ago.

In the nursery of the hospital, under the tender care of the nurses, is a tiny baby in a cradle to whom the mother, who died yesterday, had been nursing.

The body of the mother will be sent here for burial. The disposition of the baby has not been determined upon.

Mrs. Habersham, a vivacious debutante only a few seasons ago, had been wandering with the gypsies from choice since soon after she blossomed into society. Her disappearance from her Baltimore circle of acquaintances was sudden and it was not until last spring that her father's search for her was rewarded with her being located in St. Louis with a band of gypsies of which "King" John Micheletti was the chief.

The announcement of the finding of the girl and the fact that she had voluntarily surrendered her standing in society and the luxury of a beautiful home and social position for a life with the wandering band created a distinct sensation.

For several months there has been little heard of the gypsy woman. Today came the tidings from Cincinnati of her death there and the birth of the little gypsy baby.

The robbery, in broad daylight on a frequent road not far from where the men were working, was one of the most daring in the history of Massachusetts crime.

Three masked men, two carrying revolvers and the other a shot gun, stepped from behind bushes along the road and took $15,000 from three men at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Then, after puncturing the front tires of their victims' automobile, the robbers retreated from a volley of bullets in the direction of South Egremont, a mile and a half to the southwest and about two miles east of New York State line.

John Nicholson, high sheriff of Berkshire county, and Chief Ashman, of Great Barrington, head the main searching party. The other posse are in charge of deputy sheriffs.

The company from whom the money was stolen today offered a reward of $200 for the man or men who could capture the robbers, dead or alive.

All night the 300 armed men surrounded the swamp and many of them paroled the district in forty automobiles equipped with searchlights. At daybreak the posse started forward, beating through the big swamp in an attempt to capture the trio.

The swamp into which the men disappeared is at least six miles square and covered with a dense growth of small trees and shrubs that would afford an excellent hiding place, but at the same time would make traveling extremely difficult and the procuring of food almost impossible. The only hope of the authorities today is that the men are still within the confines of this territory and that hunger may drive them to seek escape, in which case capture seems imminent.

ROMANCE IS ENDED FOR ACCUSED WIFE OF WEALTHY PACKER

Mrs. John O. Schenk Paces Floor of Cell In Wheeling Jail.

AWAITS OUTCOME OF POISON CASE

Physicians Declare the Millionaire Will Recover From Effects of Drug.

By THEODORE TILLER.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 13.—Back and forth across a cement floored cell in the tower of the Ohio county jail there paced today Laura Farnsworth Schenk, wife of one of West Virginia's millionaires. Last Sabbath she trod the soft carpeted floors of a mansion in a section where the wealthy of Wheeling live. A few years ago she was a servant girl. Sometimes this morning the woman went to the window of her cell and gazed across the city blocks in the direction of the North Wheeling Hospital. There a physician bent over the cot of John O. Schenk, millionaire meat packer, and said:

"You are going to pull through, John. It will be an uphill fight; every part of your system has been ravaged by arsenic, you know, but you will get well after awhile."

John Schenk, weak, emaciated, a wreck of his former physical and mental self, half smiled as though he were glad, and then again as though he did not care.

Tragedy Has Been Recurred.

For whatever be the outcome of his illness, a tragedy has been written in the life of John O. Schenk and his loved ones within the past week. The man himself was pulled back just as the gates of eternity were held ajar for his entrance; the wife has worshipped, over the protests and adverse comments of friends and relatives, has been charged with the heinous Borgia crime of administering arsenic, drop by drop, to the man who elevated her from the position of a menial to the queen of a magnificent home; the children of that union are in the hands of a brother, who has never forgiven John Schenk for marrying a domestic, and the doors are closed and the shutters drawn at Schenk's residence on the island.

The idle, curious throng there every day say:

"That's where she lived. Why would she want to poison him if he has given her all that?"

Believe Schenk Will Live.

By tomorrow it will be reasonably assured that the millionaire packer will live, in which event his wife is entitled to bail. A committal trial, so far as the defense is concerned, probably will be waived. Prosecutor Handlan will introduce just enough evidence to possibly secure the commitment of Mrs. Schenk on a charge of attempting to kill by slow poison.

The authorities await today the return to Wheeling of Dr. Ackerman, of this city, who was one of the physicians first called to treat John O. Schenk's mysterious malady.

It is understood that Dr. Ackerman's diagnosis displeased Mrs. Schenk, and he was dismissed.

Dr. Frank L. Kupp, the doctor who discovered that Schenk's vitality was being drained by the slow administration of arsenic, told Mrs. Schenk that her husband suffered from "malaria."

He said nothing more until the water Schenk had been drinking was analyzed and found to contain poison. The detectives came, the millionaire was removed from his home to a hospital, over the emphatic protests of the wife, and last Wednesday night, when Mrs. Schenk again demanded that her husband be returned to their residence, her arrest came.

May Implicate Others.

Prosecutor Handlan intimated today that other arrests might follow, but carefully withheld all names. It is understood that the prosecution does not believe that Mrs. Schenk, a former domestic, poorly educated, and without knowledge of chemistry, could administer deadly poison in such subtle manner. For three months Schenk seemed dying a gradual death. Before this he had enjoyed perfect health.

The prosecution claims to be able to make a complete story, one fact connecting with the other in the life and tragedy of the Schenks. Schenk became ill shortly after he returned
